A Chicago Medium Arrested While Im-CHICAGO, April 2.-Two mediums, known as the Bangs Sisters, whose materialistic seances have been commented on a good deal lately, were arrested last night and locked up charged with conducting an entertainment without a license and obtaining money under false pretences. The women, who are young and good-looking, claim to flave been in the medium business since they were small children. Recently they were brought prominently before public notice through the freaks of Henry Jestram, a wealthy photographer of this city. Jestram was an old-time friend of August Spies, the anarchist, and since the latter's execution claimed on several occasions to have received spirit communication from him through the medium of the Bangs sisters, at whose seances he was a regular attendant. sangs Sisters, whose materialistic seances have latter's execution claimed on several occasions to have received spirit communication from him through the medium of the Bangs sisters, at whose seances he was a regular attendant. His mind finally became affected by constant brooding over the "spirit manifestations," and a week ago it was found necessary to place him in the hospital for the insane.

It appears that D. F. Trefny, of Englewood, who is a spiritualist, made complaint to the police three weeks ago that the Bangs sisters' seances were frauds, and a detective was detailed to attend them regularly, and at the first good chance expose and arrest them, warrants having been sworn out on the charges named above. The case of Jestram served to hasten the exposure.

Last night the detective accompanied by a brother officer and the complainant Trefny, were on hand at the opening of the seance. After the usual introductory and the examination of the cabinet by two regular attendants the lights were turned very low, several figures purporting to be spirits made their appearance one after another and communicated with the audience. Finally there appeared the spirit of a Russian princess clad in royal robes. The signal was given and Trefny sprang forward and sality and the sisters and several male attendants of the seance become, the officers were compelled to draw their revolvers to clear the roon.

THE MEDIUM'S MAKE-UP BAG.

Subsequently a search revealed a satchel filled with white muslin shrouds and the like, three sets of whiskers of different hues, five wigs, mustaches and a great variety of make-up material such as is used by actors. They also found that in the cabinet was a curtain that ran up the center of it, making two compartments, and also a side entrance which admitted the spirit operator behind the curtain, where, by the way, all the changes of costume were made. The cabinet, satchel and the sisters were then loaded into a patrol wagon and taken to the station and locked up.

Probably All Went to the Bottom. PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—It is feared that the missing crew of the ship John T. Berry, which was burned off the Australian coast on January 9, while bound from Philadelphia to Japan, have met the same fate as their unlucky craft. Notwithstanding the great efforts made by the Australian government, at the instance of the United States consul at sydney, not the slightest trace of any of the missing crew has been discovered.

PARTMENT ABOUT THE TROUBLE AT TANGIER. The Department of State has received a trouble between the sultan and himself.

"On November 10, upon application of Leon Roffe, United States citizen, actively engaged in wholesale exporting from Morocco, he granted a pension to a Mohammedan, El Abbas Ben Mohammed El Hoffr, and on the same day notified the Moorish minister for foreign affairs that he had done so and on December 9 he was informed that El Hoffr was arrested. The ground upon which the Moorish government base their action was that El Hoffr was under a judicial and inheritance claim before the Moorish civil tribunal called "Shraa." Consul Lewis' demand that El Hoffr be released was not complied with. He is of the opinion that when the representative of the United States in Morocco informs the Sultan's minister that he has extended his protection, such protection should be respected,

He has dealt in personalities, and in doing so, for the first time brings forward for discussion in the diplomatic corps the official policy of an individual foreign representative." THE BOND PURCHASE BILL. ate this afternoon took up the bond Judge Barrett has dismissed the complaint of Townsend Cox agt. 2. 8. Stokes, the United Lines Telegraph Co. and the Bankers and Merchants reorganization committee. The action was brought to annul the sale to stokes in July, 1885.

The Police Gazette's diamond whip, representing the jockey champtonship of America, has been awarded to Jimmy Etlaughia. The whip is valued at $1,000.

CAUCUS ON THE BOND BILL.

VARIOUS PROPOSITIONS BROUGHT FORWARD AND DE BATED, BUT NO CONCLUSION REACHED-A COMMIT-TER ON ORDER OF BUSINESS APPOINTED. The caucus of democratic Sens and there was a diversity of opinion. Some of the Senators advocated the prompt passage of the bill as it came from the House to authorize the Treasury Department, by dire of the President, to purchase bonds with the sur-plus. The danger of delay was pointed out. It was urged that while the Senate is delaying the passage of the bill financial dangers may threaten; that with the authority proposed to be conferred the President might be able TO AVERT A FINANCIAL PANIC, but that should such an emergency arise now, or very soon, the President could properly charge the responsibility for disastrous results upon the Senate.

Senator McPherson pleaded for the immediate passage of the House bill, and advised that the advocates of silver or greenback legislation bring forward their measures separately; that they ough not to be permitted to weigh down and delay this not to be permitted to weigh down and delay this important bill.

But many of the democratic Senators declared that they were unwilling to lose such an opportunity to advance the cause of silver; that a bill to extend the use of silver could not be got out of the finance committee, where in the course of business it must go, because a majority are opposed to that currency.

Congress that the existing law confers ample authority upon the Executive Department for the purchase of United States bonds. It was eargued that such a resolution would satisfy the President, settle the question of his authority, and at the same time leave the present question just where it stands, with the opportunity to push through sliver legislation. But this was not satisfactor to all. It was said that that plan would require a bond call by the President, and would make no provision for supplying the piace of retired national bank currency.

Another proposition made was that the Piumb amendment to the bond-purchase bill be amended so as to provide that the Secretary of the Treasury shall, in addition to the $2,000,000 per month now coined purchase sliver buillion out of the surplus in the Treasury and issue sliver certificates to take the place of retiring national bank notes. These propositions were discussed in all their phases, most of the Senators present taking part, but Congress that the existing law confers ample au-

NO CONCLUSION WAS REACHED.

No vote was taken. There was quite a strong entiment manifested in favor of an early passage of the bill to authorize the purchase of The fact that the Administration desires that done, in order that if financial danger comes it may be averted, was commented upon, and some of the Senators did not think the Administration ought to be embarrassed even to take advantage of an opportunity to advance the cause of silver. COMMITTEE ON ORDER OF BUSINESS. The following committee was appointed to arrange an order of business generally: Messrs. Harris, Cockrell, Voorhees, Coke, Beck, Jones of Harris, Cockrell, Voorhees, Coke, Beck, Jones of Arkansas, McPherson, Morgan, Butler, Gorman, and Walthall.

This committee will confer with the republican caucus committee, but their conference will not embrace the bond-purchase bill. With regard to the latter, there is something like co-operation between the advocates of silver on the democratic side and those in the republican ranks. There are senators of both parties who believe that the extension of the use of silver as a currency is paramount to all other legislation, and they will not willingly abandon the present opportunity. But unless they can muster a majority of the Senate the

That is what the silver men fear. A decided majority of the republicans favor the passage of the House bill without amendment. A minority of the democrats agree with them, and the patent fact that the Administration wants that done will increase the number of democratic votes for that plan. Another democratic caucus will be held at an early day, when some final plan may

Capitol Topics. NOTES. The Senate this afternoon passed the bill to an What He Has to Say in Reply to Collector Cook's Suit Against Him.

To-day, in the Court in General Term, the manllector of taxes, agt. James M. Trotter, recorder of deeds, was taken up, the return of the rule to show cause why respondent should not be com-manded to enter the reception of a report of tax been fixed for this morning. Mr. H. E. Davis appeared for the petitioner and Mr. W.A.Cook for the respondent. The latter filed answer. The recorder admits the law as to the validity of instruments dating from the time of delivery to the office, denies that the relator has conformed to the laws in offering real estate for taxes, and also that a full and complete report of said sale is set forth in liber 1308, folio 139. He admits that the collector is charged with selling the real estate, and within ten days he is required to renuer an accurate report of said sale, &c., and he denies that the report in question is in all respects an accurate report, duly certified and in full compliance with section 175. He denies that the report was delivered at his office at 3 o'clock November 10, or that all the essentials to an immediate record were present, and he denies that he was requested 12. He admits the demand of the commissioners to enter it as of 3 o'clock March 10, and his denial to so do. He says that he is required not simply to perform the clerical or ministerial acts, but to exercise judgment and discretion not only in the acceptance of instruments presented for record, but also in the organization of the office, the appointment of clerical force, the hours of business, &c., and this judgment and discretion can only be limited, governed and directed by legislation of Congress, and not otherwise. He states further when he became connected with the office he made no change or innovation as to the hours, and adopted them as proper; that due and sufficient notice has been given as to the hours by means of a placard, "Office hours 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.," and the other side with the word "Closed." granted a hearing in the reception room of the Senate this morning to various advocates of the cause. The room was crowded to suffocation. As legates to the late internation council as could squeeze into the room there. As a matter of fact the assemblage flowed the room and spread into the several door ways and corridors. Those in the rear stood upon chairs in their anxiety to catch every word that was uttered. The committee sat around a table at the north end of the room, and next to the entrance to the sergeant-at-arms' office a small space was left for Miss Susan B. Anthony, who was mistress of ceremonies, to present the champions of female suffrage. Miss Anthony enlivened the introductions with sploy and original remarks and suggestions. Whenever a point was made in behalf of universal suffrage the audience applauded vigorously. hairs in their anxiety to catch every word that

Mrs. Shattuck next entertained the committee with some personal reminiscences. She was earnest in her plea for woman suffrage.

Miss Anthony next introduced Mrs. Groth, of Norway, who had a very limited command of the English language. She seemed somewhat dazed, but in a kind and motherly way Miss Anthony encouraged her to say "just a word." In broken English she said that the people of Norway tavor woman suffrage, but she wanted to see the United States lead the way in this movement of liberty.

Miss Trigg was presented. In broken English, and with an accent that added to the interest of her utterance, she proclaimed nerself "a daughter of Finland," which is, she said, united with Russia, and hence her people know what oppression is. She spoke of the Capitol where the "freest laws of the world" are said to be enacted, but they are free, she declared, for only one-half of the population. She hoped to return to this country at the end of ten years and to find that the women are enfranchised. She concluded with "I hope Jat," expressed with a naive earnestness, that every-hadre analysided expressed with a naive earnestness, that every ody applauded.

Mrs. Chant, of England, said it is not the vicious or the fashionable women who are asking for suffrage, but the noblest women of the world; women who are devoting themselves to works of charity and benevolence. She added that most of the women of Great Britain who are pleading for suffrage are the descendants of noble ancestors, who, in field or forum, struggled for liberty and civilization. She proclaimed herself a grandniece of Edmund Burke, and eloquently presented the cause of women. She also proclaimed her devotion to Ireland. Her remarks were enthusiastically applicated.

Miss Anthony remarked that a year ago, in conversation with Senator Brown, a member of the committee present, he had said that he didn't committee present, he had said that he didn't know a woman of Georgia or of the South who wanted suffrage. She would introduce one in the person of Mrs. Merrick, of Louisiana.

Senator Brown retorted that Miss Anthony construed his remark in too broad a sense; that very few Southern women want suffrage.

Mrs. Merrick hesitated. She did not seem inclined to talk. "Get right up," said Miss Anthony, taking her by the shoulder. "Say a word or two, anyhow." Mrs. Merrick declared that she had been a suffragist from birth, and she had won her husband, two sons, and her brother to her way of thinking. She wanted the ballot for herself and four granddaughters.

thinking. She wanted the ballot for herself and four granddaughters.

Mrs. Keefer, of Toronto, one of the handsomest ladles present, said that woman suffrage had purified politics in Ontario. Men objected to women voting because they said politics was too dirty for women to touch. But she asked was ever there a dirty house that was fit for man to go into until woman had cleaned and purified it.

There were calls for Miss Willard, who was in the rear of the room. "Open the Red Sea," suggested Miss Anthony with a suggestive gesture, meaning that the crowd should give back and let the lady through. through.

If that number was excessive, then she asked that as many as the rule would allow be printed. In the various churches of this place, of which we have seven of different denominations, the day has been one of large congregations, fine sermons, and attentive listeners.

The Circuit Court for this County will not convene again until next Tuesday, when the case of Connell agt. Tawest, action for criminal libel, will be taken up. This case is based upon the publication of a circular alleged to have been written and published by the detendant in which the complainant, Robert G. Connell, while a candidate for judge of the Orphans' Court was charged with having slandered a prominent young lady, sold the perquisites of his office as County commissioner, and done other things contrary to the character of a good citizen. The case excites unusual interest in the community from the high standing of the parties.

Among the cases set for trial during the present week and which excites much interest is that of W. K. Pumphrey agt. W. H. Carr, to determine the line between the property of the contesting parties, situated on Montgomery avenue, the principal street of the town.

The present execrable condition of the public roads turns the public mind in a direction of a remedy, and as the people have to pay annually roads turns the public mind in a direction of a remedy, and as the people have to pay annually over $16,000 for the repair of the ordinary dirt roads they have come to the conclusion that inducements should be offered to the people to macadamize them. The county commissioners here have the authority of law to subscribe two-fifths of the costs of said roads and it is thought that farmers generally, and especially those whose land borders on public highways, will in the near future see the economy of having the roads piked.

PRINCIPAL PAUL KILLED. A Shocking and Fatal Accident Charges to a Rockiew Horseman.

Mr. Edward A. Paul, the principal of the High School, died this morning from injuries received in a shocking accident Saturday evening. About 5:30 O'clock Mr. Paul left his home, 2410 14th street, just beyond the Boundary, to ride on his ending the hill in the road in front of his house, when he was run down by a man on horseback. The horse belonged to Senator Cullom, and it was being exercised by his driver, a colored man named oseph M. Chase. It is said that Chase was riding at a reckless gallop.

THE ACCOUNT OF AN EYE WITNESS.

Mr. A. M. McLachien, the real estate dealer, who ritnessed the accident, described it to a STAR reporter. Mr. McLachlen who was driving with his porter. Mr. McLachlen who was driving with his wife, had stopped at the watering trough, about 300 yards north of Mr. Paul's house in Craven Terrace, near which the accident occurred. Mr. McLachlen noticed Mr. Paul pass down the road, and saw the colored man riding furiously along. He says the colored man riding furiously along. He was riding, and was urging it on at a reckless gallop. He was going at such a furious rate that both Mr. McLachlen and Mrs. McLochlen spoke of it as he passed. Mr. McLachlen's expression was that he was "riding as if the devil was after him." When the rider approached Mr. Paul the latter was turning in toward the sidewalk, as Mr. McLachlen thought, to get out of the way. The next instant to Mr. McLachlen's horror, horse and rider were rolling over Mr. Paul. Mr. Paul was near the gutter when he was run down. Mr. McLachlen thought the man on the horse was riding so fast that he could not turn out. As soon as the accident occurred a crowd assembled and Mr. Paul was recover the best was read to be accident occurred a crowd assembled and Mr. Paul was because the best accident by the second of the turn out. Physicians were summoned and their examina-tion satisfied them that Mr. Paul's spinal golumn tion satisfied them that Mr. Paul's spinal golumn was fractured near the shoulders. As Mr. Paul could not be moved a bed was made up for him in the parior, and there he was devotedly attended by his wife and sister. The injury was of such a character that the body was paralyzed from the shoulders down. Mr. Paul retained his consciousness, however, and while undergoing an examination by the surgeons gave an account of the accident. The news of the accident caused a thrill of horror in the community where Mr. Paul was well known and popular. There was much indignation expressed toward the colored driver, and especially among bicycle riders.

MR. PAUL'S ACCOUNT.

Mr. Paul's account.

Mr. Paul said when conversing with members of his family after the accident, that he had noticed the man on the horse, but as he was in front and on the side of the road, leaving the greater part of the road open for any one to pass, he did not give any thought of the matter and did not know his danger until he was trampled down. Yesterday there were many callers at the house, including Miss Cullom, who called to express the sympathy and regret of Senator and Mrs. Cullom. Chase, the colored driver, was put under arrest yesterday morning, and released on $1,000 bail. After Mr. Paul's death, Chase was rearrested and locked up in the 8th precinct station house to await the result of an inquest which the coroner will probably hold to-morrow. Chase insisted that the affair was an unavoidable accident. He said that he had stopped the horse the man on the horse, but as he was in front and which the coroner will probably hold to-morrow. Chase insisted that the affair was an unavoidable accident. He said that he had stopped the horse at the watering place near the top of the hill and then started down. His horse was restive. Mr. Paul, he said, stopped his bicycle right in front of him suddenly, and he could not turn out in time to avoid running him down.

Mr. Paul died about 7:30 o'clock this morning. He retained consciousness up to the moment of his death and conversed at times with the members of his family. Yesterday morning when the attending physicians decided that the case was a hopeless one, Mr. Paul was informed by his wife of their verdict. He received the announcement with perfect calmness and bore himself heroically until the end. During last night and as death approached he suffered much pain.

A meeting of the wheelmen of the city, irrespective of clubs, and of all other people interested, has been called for this evening at 7.30 o'clock to take action looking to a thorough legal investigation of the sad accident. He came at once to this city, having received an appointment as a teacher of the grammar school of the first division then under the supervision of Mr. Copp. In the following year he was selected to take charge of what was then called the advanced grammar school for boys, the beginning of the present High School. This school was experimental and was not called the High School because of the objection that existed in some quarters to the school. and was not called the High School because of the objection that existed in some quarters to the establishment of a High School. The first year's class comprised fifty-four boys, and they graduated in 1878. Mr. Paul was principal and the only teacher in the school at that time, and he always maintained the most friendly relations with the young men who graduated in that first class, and attended regularly their annual reunions. Subsequently the boys' advanced grammar school and a similar school established for girls were united in attended regularly their annual reunions. Subsequently the boys' advanced grammar school and a similar school established for girls were united in the present Washington High School. To Mr. Paul's spiendid ablities as a teacher, a disciplinarian, and an organizer, is due largely the present flourishing condition of the High School with its fine building, its corps of accomplished teachers, its thousand students and its progressive spirit. Three years ago, when Mr. J. O. Wilson left the office of superintendent of schools, Mr. Paul was appointed temporarily to the place, but was soon relieved at his own request, as he preferred his old place at the High School. Mr. Paul was married last June to Miss Sarah Woodman, who had been engaged for several years as a teacher at the High School. The wedding took place at Haverhili, Mass., and the couple spent the summer vacation in Europe. Mr. Paul's father died three or four years ago, but his mother is still living. His brother, Mr. A. C. Paul, formerly an examiner in the Patent office, and who recently married Miss Navin, of this city, is now residing in St. Paul, engaged in law practice.

Mr. Paul had other brothers and sisters, who have been notified of the sad occurrence and are on their way to Washington. Arrangements for the funeral will not be made until to-morrow, when members of family will be here.

PRESIDENT.

The White House grounds were crowded with people—both old and young. The whole number of those who visited the grounds was estimated at about five thousand. The greatest liberty was given to the children, who rolled their eggs and romped around to their hearts' content. Under the trees were picnic parties in numbers.

When the President came down to the East Room to receive the regular visitors he found among them a large crowd of the children with their eggs and baskets, and received them all.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES. The Selection of Delegates to the Con-vention Thursday Night.

The democratic primary elections will be held to-morrow night in the places designated in the notices published by the central committee. The ection of three delegates to the convention which nects on Thursday will be the only business before the primaries. There is considerable interest among District democrats in regard to the action of the primaries, for the result of the election there will largely determine the more important question of the choice of two delegates to the St. Louis convention. In some of the districts the primaries will be brief, and few votes will be east. In others the rivalry between the different candidates will bring out a full vote. The gentlemen who are prominently named in connection with the election of delegates are Mr. Lawrence Gardner, the president of the Columbia Democratic club; Mr. James L. Norris, the president of the Jackson Democratic Club; Mr. Lawrence Gardner, the president of the Columbia Democratic club; Mr. James L. Norris, the president of the Jackson Democratic Club; Mr. Wm. LICENSING OF STEAM ENGINEERS.

The Commissioners have prepared and submitted to Chairman Hemphill a draft of a new bill relative to the examination and licensing of steam engineers in the District of Columbia. The bill embraces many of the features of House bill 7440, "To amend an act entitled 'An act to regulate steam engineering in the District of Columbia." The service which this bill is sought to regulate so far as possible to do so by statute is a peculiar one. There are many small engines and steam plants now in charge of persons who are competent to manage them, but whom it would be steam plants now in charge of persons who are competent to manage them, but whom it would be perhaps unwise to trust the care of engines or steam plants of greater power or complexity; therefore provisions have been introduced classifying the service and authorizing the issuing of licenses for the classes which such engineers may be found competent to fill. The Commissioners think that public and private interests will be subserved by the passage of this bill, and have therefore recommended favorable action thereon.

MR. HOPKINS' BILL FOR MAPS.

THE STAE mentioned a few days ago that the Commissioners had refused to pay Mr. Hopkins the amount of $300 for certain atlasses and maps alleged to have been furnished the bistrict on Col. Ludiow's order, but were willing to pay $210, that being the amount of the bill for maps, &c., for which requisitions were issued. To-day the Commissioners received another letter from Mr. Hopkins in which he demands the rull amount of the bill, and reiterates that the maps were issued in good faith, and the bill is perfectly correct. The Commissioners replied to-day requesting Mr. Hopkins to inform them specifically upon whose orders and upon what conditions such atlasses and maps were issued.

for the year beginning this date.

It has been just two years since, by the appointment of Commissioner Wheatley and detail of Major Ludlow as Engineer Commissioner, that virtually a new administration of District affairs was inaugurated. There has probably been so Board of Commissioners preceding this that had before it so many questions affecting vitally the interests of the District, nor who were subjected to such widespread criticism, both favorable and unfavorable. The police scandal, the extension of Massachusetts ave., the general plan of street extension and the water department wrangle are some of the most noteworthy of these events. The appointment of each Commissioner is for three years from the date of his commission. Mr. Wheatley's term will expire in April, 1888. Mr. Webb was a recess appointment in July, 1888, and being confirmed by the Senate in January, 1886, his term does not expire until January, 1880. The term of Major Raymond is not fixed, but is continuous until relieved by the President.

At their meeting to-day the special charge of the affairs of the fire department, which have been as signed to Commissioner Wheatley since he came into office, was transferred to Commissioner Webb and the special charge of the offices of the collector of taxes and auditor were transferred from the latter to Commissioner Wheatley.
